201 'I' Street, Mountain Lake Park, has a plan very similar to that of the Chautauqua Cottage [G-24], also in Mountain Lake Park. The plan is cruciform and both houses are 2 storey clapboard dwellings with abruptly pointed Gothic windows and a porch on the front. Here, however, the porch continues around to include the side wings, rather than just reaching to them. The most notable difference in this house is its square tower placed at the junction of two wings. The orientation of the house is set at this corner tower and the main entrance is here, with porch steps also placed here. A stage taller than the rest of the building, the tower has a small diamond shaped window on each side; each side of the tower is peaked, thus forming a tower roof of two intersecting gable roofs which echoes (parallels) the main roof of the house.
